Employee portion

What are you most excited about at work?

Being fully empowered and trusted. Having the opportunity to drive a very challenging project in large variety if aspects. Being able to federate a group of talented people around this project around EU.

When you're at your best, how do you best contribute?

Consider a large amount of dimensions of a project, and be able to prioritize, remove ambiguity and facilitate decisions among stakeholders. Provide support whenever needed so others can move forward and keep mobilized on the project.

Are there any growth areas you want help on?

(no response)

Which Leadership Principles do you most excel at?

Ownership
Leaders are owners. They think long term and don't sacrifice long-term value for short-term results. They act on behalf of the entire company, beyond just their own team. They never say "that's not my job."

Invent and Simplify
Leaders expect and require innovation and invention from their teams and always find ways to simplify. They are externally aware, look for new ideas from everywhere, and are not limited by "not invented here." As we do new things, we accept that we may be misunderstood for long periods of time.

Are Right, A Lot
Leaders are right a lot. They have strong judgment and good instincts. They seek diverse perspectives and work to disconfirm their beliefs.

Learn and Be Curious
Leaders are never done learning and always seek to improve themselves. They are curious about new possibilities and act to explore them.

Bias for Action
Speed matters in business. Many decisions and actions are reversible and do not need extensive study. We value calculated risk taking.

Have Backbone; Disagree and Commit
Leaders are obligated to respectfully challenge decisions when they disagree, even when doing so is uncomfortable or exhausting. Leaders have conviction and are tenacious. They do not compromise for the sake of social cohesion. Once a decision is determined, they commit wholly.

Deliver Results
Leaders focus on the key inputs for their business and deliver them with the right quality and in a timely fashion. Despite setbacks, they rise to the occasion and never settle.

Feedback

You bring a lot of strengths to your work at Amazon. What stands out for me is:

Fabrice is very strong at multi-tasking / running numerous projects in parallel. He has the ability to very quickly step into a very large program with heavy pressure and bring ownership and trust that we will deliver. He his highly organized and has numerous methodologies/tools to help him, and that gives him a high efficiency as a program manager.

Here are the super powers your peers provided:

> Beside the Vinci project which had some difficulties at the beginning, but improved over the course of the project as Fabrice changed some approaches, I had no solid interaction with him to identify any superpower.

> Fabrice actively developed the EU PM Launch network by sharing best practices, implementing standardized tools (planning / playbook) and highlighting project risks.

> Fabrice displays a very approachable persona- making it easy to have conversations with him.

> Fabrice is Great worker and a Positive person , which try to learn and understand while is being engaged 100% in a Project which give him a positive return in the future provided results .

> Fabrice is THE PROJECT MANAGER! I appreciate his organization, planning and patience to relentlessly deal with all the issues raised by the different teams. I really appreciate his "zen" approach to issue, I have never seen him losing his temperament but he always remains focussed on the target!

> Fabrice is amazing in problem solving! When facing an issue, he is so fast in catching the key components of it and providing the easiest solution or the path to get there.

> Fabrice is an amazing PM who always manage to make things seems simple. In such complex projects where I worked with Fabrice, he manage to coordinated a big group of people to make everyone onboard and working full speed towards a common goal, a country launch.

> Fabrice is very good at managing complex projects with many stakeholders, all while pushing relentlessly for results and timeliness.

> Fabrice very quickly took the ownership of learning the overall launch process, and adapted well his contributions to make the most impact to the success of the team. He is a great communicator, and major contributor to hiring a great team in IT. He also has a strong business acumen, which helps him proactively raise/mitigate issues at the right moment.

> Fabrice was instrumental in launching AMZL IT

> Fabrice's super powers are his coolness under pressure and his positive attitude. During the AMZL IT launch Fabrice joined after the project had initiated but seamlessly fitted into his leadership role and gained the confidence of the whole > project team in a large and complex project. He was always clear, approachable and receptive to feedback which I really appreciated

> Fabrice's superpowers are "bias for action" and "earn trust in others". I felt his full support and trust in my works during the entire VINCI project. He was never to "covard" to make decissions and stick to them.

> Fabrice's superpowers are his Bias for Action and capacity to deliver results. He clearly demonstrated it with AMZL IT launch in 2016. He has been fully devoted to the project from the start to the very end, and has pictured in details all different tasks related to a DS launch just after few days within his role.

> His ability to dive deep into issues and a very strong bias for action in setting out a plan with allocated tasks. He has an excellent grasp of English, French, German and Spanish which him to earn trust of others on overseas projects. This stand him in excellent stead.

> Invent and Simplify, he always helps you hence he is a person that accompanies you. Clear ideas that let the team works together in the same direction.

> Knowledge sharing: Fabrice earns trust by sharing his past experience.
> Networking: Fabrice most often knows who is resourceful about a specific topic - this helped my onboarding!
> Excel/VBA: Fabrice always has a tool to do stuff, very helpful.

> You are great in thinking on your feet and to come up with quick solutions . You displayed this when when we ran into some last minute problems in the Italy launch. You took over some of the work and helped to establish the right group of people to get the job done.

We know that leaders are never done learning and always seek to improve themselves. Below are the growth ideas your co-workers and I provided. We hope you find these ideas useful.

Growth ideas from me:

With increasing pressure and complexity, Fabrice can become irascible and forget to stay self critical. Being highly passionate and involved, he can sometimes focus too much on immediate execution and forget the big picture or needs for communication (upward and downward) . He should invest on reporting / prioritization when the heat builds-up, that will help his global program leadership.

Growth ideas from your peers:

> A greater on the ground, operational knowledge of how the AMZL business works. Be more willing to make big decisions and recommendations to the business. A larger think big approach rather than being bogged down in the individual projects.

> Don't get too fixed on the immediate deliverable, if there might be impact on operations shortly after launch! Fabrice is very good in Bias for Action, but he should also focus on Are right, a lot and ensure the senior stakeholders are provided with right level of visibility and details to form their determination on whether proceed with a site.

> Fabrice comes with a great knowledge in reports creation. With his strong Excel/VBA knowledge, he should take the time to develop in advance reports for project follow-up and share those with the appropriate audience. He should aim at keeping his team updated at all times even though this would consist of one weekly recap email.

Fabrice has already covered different roles in his Amazon experience in all the roles providing successful result .
Think he is a curios person and the best results will be engage him in new development Project.

Fabrice has an opportunity to grow in his level of Ownership. He often fails to be transparent in projects that he is managing and shies away from taking responsibility for the project's ultimate success, as if he solely sees himself as an executor or consultant rather than having a stake in the game.

He could improve (and he already did it) "insist in the highest standards" for the next country launches. All learnings from VINCI should get into the new projects. Also, all pan EU functions should be involved earlier in the projects (e.g. LP, IT, Process Engineering).

I think at times you have to show more ownership of the projects you are running and be stronger in pulling all strings together. In the Vinci project at times when problems occurred, they were left to the business owners to work out between themselves.

I think thinking big skills in an area where he could continue improving. Sometimes in the project we have worked on we have faced issues in areas where a better long term planning could have helped mitigate those issues... In our projects for example real estate is always a concern, but a better long term planning would improve the situation

Improved proactive communication and active involvement of his stakeholder to drive integrated schedules and programs is an area Fabrice should invest.

In order to be more efficient in the overall end to end launch process, it will help if he is more engaged on early critical launch milestones such as RE and construction. This will help him get a better feel of overall launch risks, which will help drive priorities to the team.

Knowledge sharing! Share your tools Fabrice, they are useful, the world should know it.

Sometimes strong communications and you could misunderstand him.

Sometimes the other stakeholders aren’t as fast or efficient as Fabrice. When this happens, sometimes Fabrice is upset and loses motivation (Think big).

The pre-launch process (business case and site pre-selection) is still hard to manage. Fabrice could dive deep into some of these topics (ex: building sizes, site search criteria...) in order to align all EU countries and share even more best practices.

What he can do better is to PR himself and the job he does

Thank you!
