Forte 2020

Fabrice Rimlinger

Business title: Program Manager, Supply Chain
Finalized by: Steve Griffiths, stegrif@

Employee portion

What are you most excited about at work?

Solve problems by thinking out of the box. Balancing systematic & structured approaches to design solid long term solution, vs shortcuts & bias for action for a quick solve. Use a problem as a learning opportunity.

When you're at your best, how do you best contribute?

I always try to stand in the other person's shoes, take their position until I understand their need better than they do. I try to recommend several outcomes and present the pros & cons of each.

Which Leadership Principles do you demonstrate when you are at your best?

Invent and Simplify
Leaders expect and require innovation and invention from their teams and always find ways to simplify. They are externally aware, look for new ideas from everywhere, and are not limited by "not invented here." As we do new things, we accept that we may be misunderstood for long periods of time.

Bias for Action
Speed matters in business. Many decisions and actions are reversible and do not need extensive study. We value calculated risk taking.

Dive Deep
Leaders operate at all levels, stay connected to the details, audit frequently, and are skeptical when metrics and anecdote differ. No task is beneath them.

What growth ideas do you have for yourself?

Take advantage of my knowledge of Amazon orgs to mentor/manage a team.

Are there any Leadership Principles you want to focus on for growth?

Think Big
Thinking small is a self-fulfilling prophecy. Leaders create and communicate a bold direction that inspires results. They think differently and look around corners for ways to serve customers.

Have Backbone; Disagree and Commit
Leaders are obligated to respectfully challenge decisions when they disagree, even when doing so is uncomfortable or exhausting. Leaders have conviction and are tenacious. They do not compromise for the sake of social cohesion. Once a decision is determined, they commit wholly.

Insist on the Highest Standards
Leaders have relentlessly high standards - many people may think these standards are unreasonably high. Leaders are continually raising the bar and drive their teams to deliver high quality products, services and processes. Leaders ensure that defects do not get sent down the line and that problems are fixed so they stay fixed.

Feedback

You bring a lot of strengths to your work at Amazon. What stands out for me is:

Fabrice has an analytical brain that can identify problems & look for the solve. His ability to invent & simplify a process is an asset that i am sure will be explored in more detail in his new role. He was an asset to the DD team & will be missed

Here are the super powers your peers provided:

> Fabrice has an amazing ability of consistently collaborating well with colleagues from diverse countries and backgrounds. His patience with his peers and clients allow him to provide clear assessments - no matter the audience. Fabrice's responsiveness is quick and calls out issues immediately - preventing a small concern from turning into a major issue.

> Fabrice is a colleague with extraordinary experience. He's a precious resources due to his well-recognized capacity to understand ans solve business critical sitations. I appreaciate a lot his attitute to provide simple solution to business blockers.

> Fabrice is an extremely well organized, tech savvy professional who is always ready to learn more and improve his expertise. This combined with him applying the invent and simplify leadership principle to his daily work make it easy to work with him as well as a pleasure.

> Fabrice's super mega power is to invent and simplify! He has put many usefull process in place that simplifies the life of everyone. also because he his oriented to deliver results rapidely and undertands the need of the business, he will talk to the right stakeholders to make things move forards quickly. He is a real asset in a team!

> Fabrice´s super power is his incredible knowledge, not only about anything tech-related but also about processes; I enjoy working with Fabrice very much, it is always a two-way experience: mixture of getting things done but at the same time getting an educational session where I can learn so much. Thanks for a great collaboration on previous projects and looking forward to many more.

> Great organizational skills coupled with very high technical/software abilities. In-depth understanding of project due diligence, roles, timing and risks. Multi-cultural and multi-lingual with excellent cross-cultural ability.

The Leadership Principles are a key component of Amazon culture. Your peers, direct reports (if applicable), and I think you best demonstrate the following Leadership Principles:

Invent and Simplify
6 responses (1 manager, 5 peers)

Leaders expect and require innovation and invention from their teams and always find ways to simplify. They are externally aware, look for new ideas from everywhere, and are not limited by “not invented here.” As we do new things, we accept that we may be misunderstood for long periods of time.

Ownership
4 responses (1 manager, 3 peers)

Leaders are owners. They think long term and don’t sacrifice long-term value for short-term results. They act on behalf of the entire company, beyond just their own team. They never say “that’s not my job.”

Bias for Action
3 responses (1 manager, 2 peers)

Speed matters in business. Many decisions and actions are reversible and do not need extensive study. We value calculated risk taking.

Learn and Be Curious
2 responses (2 peers)

Leaders are never done learning and always seek to improve themselves. They are curious about new possibilities and act to explore them.

Customer Obsession
1 response (1 peer)

Leaders start with the customer and work backwards. They work vigorously to earn and keep customer trust. Although leaders pay attention to competitors, they obsess over customers.

Are Right, A Lot
1 response (1 peer)

Leaders are right a lot. They have strong judgment and good instincts. They seek diverse perspectives and work to disconfirm their beliefs.

Insist on the Highest Standards
1 response (1 peer)

Leaders have relentlessly high standards - many people may think these standards are unreasonably high. Leaders are continually raising the bar and drive their teams to deliver high quality products, services and processes. Leaders ensure that defects do not get sent down the line and that problems are fixed so they stay fixed.

Earn Trust
1 response (1 peer)

Leaders listen attentively, speak candidly, and treat others respectfully. They are vocally self-critical, even when doing so is awkward or embarrassing. Leaders do not believe their or their team’s body odor smells of perfume. They benchmark themselves and their teams against the best.

Dive Deep
1 response (1 peer)

Leaders operate at all levels, stay connected to the details, audit frequently, and are skeptical when metrics and anecdote differ. No task is beneath them.

Have Backbone; Disagree and Commit
1 response (1 peer)

Leaders are obligated to respectfully challenge decisions when they disagree, even when doing so is uncomfortable or exhausting. Leaders have conviction and are tenacious. They do not compromise for the sake of social cohesion. Once a decision is determined, they commit wholly.

We know that leaders are never done learning and always seek to improve themselves. Below are the growth ideas your co-workers and I provided. We hope you find these ideas useful.

Growth ideas from me:

Fabrice should continue to expand his repertoire of skills & find a role where he can add the most value. I would like to see him remain in a role where he can earn trust of all around him & he becomes the go to SME person.

Growth ideas from your peers:

> As Fabrice is leaving the Due Diligence world, I can only encourage him to keep doing what he already does : excell and make people's life much easier ! We are already missing him a lot! Good Luck in your new position Fabrice!

> Continuing with learning and being curious and diving deep into different fields will make Fabrice improve even more his extensive knowledge of the company. This together with thinking big will improve his ability to grow.

> I think that Fabrice should improve his communicational skills in order to better align all the peers on his activities and to better manage their feedbacks.

> Should be a great coach if he could transfer his skills to others in the organization.

> With having taken on the new role within the Shield team, I would like to see him leading major projects rather than being just a part of a project. He is ready for doing so and will even develop further.

> Would be great to hear back from Fabrice more often when changes are rolled out in SHIELD. Understand that the platform is constantly being upgraded and improved - but as the customer, we do not always know when changes are implemented. Maybe start with a weekly email stating what's changed and whom it affects?

Here are the Leadership Principles your peers, direct reports (if applicable), and I suggest you focus on for growth:

Think Big
4 responses (1 manager, 3 peers)

Thinking small is a self-fulfilling prophecy. Leaders create and communicate a bold direction that inspires results. They think differently and look around corners for ways to serve customers.

Are Right, A Lot
3 responses (1 manager, 2 peers)

Leaders are right a lot. They have strong judgment and good instincts. They seek diverse perspectives and work to disconfirm their beliefs.

Earn Trust
3 responses (1 manager, 2 peers)

Leaders listen attentively, speak candidly, and treat others respectfully. They are vocally self-critical, even when doing so is awkward or embarrassing. Leaders do not believe their or their team's body odor smells of perfume. They benchmark themselves and their teams against the best.

Ownership
2 responses (2 peers)

Leaders are owners. They think long term and don't sacrifice long-term value for short-term results. They act on behalf of the entire company, beyond just their own team. They never say "that's not my job."

Hire and Develop the Best
2 responses (2 peers)

Leaders raise the performance bar with every hire and promotion. They recognize exceptional talent, and willingly move them throughout the organization. Leaders develop leaders and take seriously their role in coaching others. We work on behalf of our people to invent mechanisms for development like Career Choice.

Customer Obsession
1 response (1 peer)

Leaders start with the customer and work backwards. They work vigorously to earn and keep customer trust. Although leaders pay attention to competitors, they obsess over customers.

Frugality
1 response (1 peer)

Accomplish more with less. Constraints breed resourcefulness, self-sufficiency and invention. There are no extra points for growing headcount, budget size or fixed expense.

Dive Deep
1 response (1 peer)

Leaders operate at all levels, stay connected to the details, audit frequently, and are skeptical when metrics and anecdote differ. No task is beneath them.

Thank you!